

Sociology in Algeria Between History and Ideologies

Prof. Faradji Mohamed Akli

University of Bejaia, Algeria

Abstract

Our communication tries to explain, epistemologically, the relationship of the deferent themes orientations of sociological research.

This field of academics works related with the nature of political and social change observed in Algerian society during the evolution of sociology as social sciences.

In the same time our proposition is also an interpretation of the political discourses compared to field of sociological research in Algeria; this is why it is important to explain the nature of attachment between the problems posed by sociological investigations related to the social and political conditions. This is also the field which constitutes the historical situations situated in the academic problematic preoccupations.

Keywords: Sociology, History, Ideology